Re: Modernizing Unbundling and Resale Rules in an Era of Next-Generation Networks and Services (WC Docket No. 19-308)

Dear Ms. Dortch:

On November 12, 2019, Jonathan Spalter, CEO of USTelecom – The Broadband Association, had separate telephone conversations with Chairman Ajit Pai and Commissioner Geoffrey Starks along with Austin Bonner, Wireline Legal Advisor to Commissioner Starks, urging the Commission to adopt without delay the public draft of the Modernizing Unbundling and Resale Rules Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (“Draft Modernizing Unbundling and Resale Rules NRPM”) scheduled for consideration at the November 22, 2019 Open Meeting.¹

During the conversations, Mr. Spalter expressed USTelecom’s support of the Federal Communications Commission’s (“Commission”) ongoing efforts to modernize outdated regulations to reflect the modern, competitive, communications marketplace.² USTelecom supports the proposals included in the Draft Modernizing Unbundling and Resale Rules NRPM that would seek comment on updating the Commission’s unbundling and resale rules to reflect the dynamic transformation of the communications marketplace. Consistent with Congress’ directive in the 1996 Telecommunications Act (“1996 Act”), the Commission is taking timely action with its proposal that it is no longer necessary to enforce a regime that harms consumers by slowing the transition to modern networks and distorts competition by imposing outdated and unwarranted regulatory burdens on incumbent providers.

Mr. Spalter also discussed how the Commission’s proposals would not harm consumers since vigorous and accelerating intermodal voice and broadband competition already exists, especially in urban areas where the Commission is considering to focus relief. Further, the Draft Modernizing Unbundling and Resale Rules NRPM specifically proposes to exempt residential broadband service and telecommunications service in rural areas.³

² See FCC’s 5G Fast Plan, FCC, <https://www.fcc.gov/5G> (last visited Nov. 6, 2019) (modernizing outdated regulations is one of three key components to the FCC’s comprehensive strategy to facilitate America’s superiority in 5G technology).

Mr. Spalter expressed appreciation for the Commission's continued leadership in examining how it can modernize its rules to keep pace with today's communications marketplace and in particular, the balanced approach contemplated in the Draft Modernizing Unbundling and Resale Rules NRPM.

USTelecom looks forward to adoption of the Draft Modernizing Unbundling and Resale Rules NRPM and the subsequent public comment period.
